

UNIVERSITY OF CAMBRIDGE

Teaching Associate – ‘Geographies of Hope’

Department of Geography

Closing date: 23rd April 2025

Job Reference: LC45430

Teaching Associate – ‘Geographies of Hope’

Salary:

£34,866 - £45,163

Contract:

Fixed Term for 24 months

Location:

Cambridge

Department:

Geography

Responsible to:

Professor Emma Mawdsley

Working Pattern:

We are happy to accept applications for applicants wanting to work from 80% minimum, upto 100% FTE

The University of Cambridge has a Hybrid Working Policy that aims to enable as many staff as possible to work in a hybrid way if they so wish, whilst recognising that some roles will include tasks that can only be performed on University premises.

The role

Applications are invited for a two-year fixed term Teaching Associate position to support Professor Emma Mawdsley in research, writing and teaching around ‘Geographies of Hope’. The successful candidate will be based in the Department of Geography.

Professor Mawdsley has developed a third-year undergraduate course, ‘Geographies of Hope’, which launched in 2023. It was supported by a Ray Y Gildea Jnr award from the Royal Geographical Society with the Institute of British Geographers; and in its first year it won a University wide student-led teaching award for innovative teaching. The course aims to engage critically and constructively with ideas of ‘hope’ in Geography. It examines various ways in which ‘progressive change’ has been achieved, at different scales, in different places, and in different ways, all animated by different ideas. It recognises that different actors (and participants in the course) will have varying ideas of what might constitute ‘progress’, and unpack that critically.

The course is deliberately wide-ranging in the issues and means/methods of achieving change. The course isn’t about providing ‘answers’; rather, the aim is to contribute to faculty and student understanding of positive change, with the hope that everyone will find more empowering possibilities to take forward.

The successful applicant will help organise the course; contribute undergraduate lectures, and lead small group teaching, and associated aspects of this course, including innovative assessment and marking. The successful applicant will also contribute to other parts of the Tripos and Masters programmes where relevant.

The second element of the post is to co-develop with Professor Mawdsley a teaching resource – most likely a text book, but possibly with web-based elements – for undergraduate teaching on this subject in the UK and beyond. The third element is to co-research and co-author articles for journal publications on hopeful geographies.

The post is therefore a blend of teaching and pedagogy-oriented writing and research.

Eligible candidates should have a PhD (or relevant experience) in human geography or a cognate subject. They may or may not have worked on ‘hope’ directly, but they will be able to show how their research, teaching and/or personal and professional interests engage with ‘hopeful’ geographies. Applicants must be highly motivated and should have excellent time management, organisational and communication skills, and be able to bring ideas and energy to this role. The ability to write engagingly and with clarity is essential.

Key responsibilities

Teaching

- Plan, prepare and deliver lectures, seminars and practical classes for students on the Geography undergraduate degree and, where appropriate, Masters programmes.
- Contribute and deliver appropriate methods teaching for undergraduates.
- Supervise relevant undergraduate and Masters dissertations.
- Participate in, and contribute to the planning of, relevant undergraduate fieldwork teaching relating to the 'Hope' paper.
- Provide guidance and academic advice to students.
- Coordinate and deliver supervisions (small group tutorials) related to your teaching on the undergraduate degree.
- Contribute to the outreach activities of the Geography Department through the delivery of lectures or seminars.

Examining

- Set examination questions and papers.
- Mark and assess examination papers and coursework, including undergraduate and Masters dissertations.
- Write constructive coursework feedback and dissertation reports.
- Participate in examinations, including Examiners' meetings where relevant.
- Provide feedback to students on assessed work.

Administration

- Participate in Departmental meetings and undertake some administrative duties, as commensurate with the grade and duration of the role.

Research and scholarship

- Be actively involved in the Department's research culture, including participation in one or more Thematic Research Groups.
- Maintain and develop own knowledge in the subject area through active engagement with literature and other academics in the field (Department support available).

The University of Cambridge is a signatory to the San-Francisco Declaration on Research Assessment (DORA), and in recruitment or promotion evaluations will assess research on the basis of its merits rather than the journal or venue in which it is published. Applicants should not include Journal Impact Factors or uncontextualized metrics in their applications. Full details are at: <https://www.research-strategy.admin.cam.ac.uk/research-policy/DORA>

The Department of Geography

The Department of Geography has a long-established international reputation as one of the leading centres of innovative geographical thought and education and celebrated one hundred years of teaching Geography in Cambridge in 2019.

The Department is a friendly and inclusive scholastic community with wide-ranging research interests spanning the natural and social sciences and the humanities. Incorporating the Scott Polar Research Institute, and based on two central Cambridge sites, at Downing Place and Lensfield Road, it has approximately 40 academic, 25 research and 45 support staff at any one time.

Teaching

The Department delivers a Tripos (undergraduate degree) with an intake of approximately 100 students per year and has a vibrant graduate community of approximately 150 students studying at PhD level and on Master's courses in Geography, Polar Studies, Anthropocene Studies, Holocene Climates and Conservation Leadership.

The Department was ranked top in the 2025 Complete University Guide in the category of Geography and Environmental Science and third in the 2024 QS World University Rankings for Geography.

Visit our website at
<http://www.geog.cam.ac.uk>

Research

The Department's research activities are organised into six thematic groups: Vital Geographies, Infrastructural Geographies, Geographies of Knowledge, Biogeography and Biogeomorphology, Climate and Environmental Dynamics, and Glaciology and Glacial Geology. These overlap with two centres of excellence – the Cambridge Group for the History of Population and Social Structure, co-hosted with the Faculty of History, and the Scott Polar Research Institute. The Department also provides the home for the University of Cambridge Conservation Research Institute.

The Department's research is aided by well-supported laboratories, field equipment and high-performance computing services, supporting a combination of fieldwork, laboratory analysis and experiments, remote sensing and computational modelling.

The last UK Research Excellence Framework exercise (2021), based on a metric measuring the quality of our research publications and the strength of our research environment, ranked the Department fourth in the country.

If you prefer to discuss any special arrangements connected with a disability, please contact, the Department Administrator, who is responsible for recruitment to this position.

The University

The University of Cambridge is consistently ranked one of the best universities in the world, achieving academic excellence through its Faculties, Departments and other Institutions, together with the 31 Colleges.

The University is renowned for its record of discovery and innovation. It is one of the great institutions, with a regional, national and global reach, attracting the very best and brightest minds. Our staff and students shape the world around us for the better: we attract and partner with like-minded people.

Whether contributing to the development of new anti-cancer drugs, adding to the understanding of how black holes are formed, revolutionising the study of ancient settlements, convening academic expertise to offer solutions to the climate crisis, or analysing public attitudes towards democracy around the world, the University's research is remarkable in its breadth, quality and impact. The University also sits at the heart of Europe's largest technology cluster and has catalysed more than 1,500 high-tech companies. And yet what inspires our 24,000 students and 13,000 staff is not what has already been achieved, but what is possible in the future.

The education and experience of our students, based on a partnership between the University's academic Departments and Faculties and the 31 Colleges, is second to none. Every student is a member of one of the Colleges, each a community of students, academics and staff drawn from across the University's comprehensive range of subject areas.

The University is a self-governing community, with a system for decision-making that provides a high degree of accountability and transparency to its members. Each Department and Faculty is part of one of six academic Schools, but each of them, and each individual academic, has a great deal of autonomy. The Colleges are independent and self-governing, working in a symbiotic relationship with the University.

The University has a number of Institutions that are independent of any Faculty or Department and are not part of the academic Schools. These include the Institute of Continuing Education (which provides high-quality education to adults throughout their lives), the Fitzwilliam Museum, Kettle's Yard (an historic house and gallery that holds important collections of modern art) and the University Library. In addition to their diverse contributions to University and public life, these non-School Institutions are also important centres of teaching and research.

Cambridge University Press & Assessment provides academic publishing, examinations and learning materials worldwide, supporting the dissemination of research, academic development at school and in higher education, and international student mobility. Legally, the Press & Assessment is a department of the University. It provides very important funds to invest in the academic purposes of the University.

The University has made truly remarkable contributions to the sum of human understanding, with breakthrough ideas and discoveries that have changed the way we understand ourselves, our planet, and the universe around us. Yet the global and national contexts in which it operates are fast-changing and increasingly filled with uncertainty. In a world that is becoming - politically, economically, socially, and technologically – ever more interconnected but even less equal, the University's mission – “to contribute to society through the pursuit of education, learning and research at the highest international levels of excellence” – has never been more relevant.

About Us

The University is one of the world's leading academic centres. It comprises 150 faculties and departments, together with a central administration and other institutions. Our institutions, museums and collections are a world-class resource for researchers, students and members of the public representing one of the country's highest concentrations of internationally important collections.

The University has an annual income of £2 billion. Research income, won competitively from the UK Research Councils, the European Union (EU), major charities and industry, exceeds £500 million per annum and continues to grow.

The Colleges and the University remain committed to admitting the best students regardless of their background and to investing considerable resources both in widening access and financial support. The 31 Colleges are self-governing, separate legal entities which appoint their own staff. Many academic staff are invited to join a College as a Teaching Fellow, which provides a further social and intellectual dimension. The Colleges admit undergraduate students, provide student accommodation and pastoral support and deliver small group teaching for undergraduates.

The University awards degrees and its faculties and departments provide lectures and seminars for students and determine the syllabi for teaching.

Our instinct for seeking out excellence and setting up enduring and mutually beneficial collaborations has led us to establish strategic partnerships across the globe. Whether it is the successful Cambridge-Africa Programme involving universities in Ghana, Uganda and elsewhere on the African continent; or the close association with the government of India to pursue new research in crop science; or the creation, with Germany's Max Planck Institutes, of a Cambridge-based centre for the study of ethics, human economy and social change – international partnerships are now an inextricable part of the University's make-up.

“Through its outstanding education, research and innovation, the University of Cambridge has made – and continues to make – a lasting contribution to human knowledge and is flourishing. By working at the University of Cambridge, you will be joining a vibrant community of students, scholars and professional services staff committed to supporting and enhancing the University's mission to contribute to society.”

*Professor Deborah Prentice,
Vice Chancellor 2023*

Working at the University

Working at Cambridge you will join a diverse, talented and innovative community, with more than 24,000 students and over 13,000 staff from all walks of life and corners of the world.

The University continually explores strategies to attract and retain the best people. It is committed to supporting its staff to achieve their best. We are a fair, diverse and inclusive society and we believe our staff are our greatest asset. There is strong commitment to developing institutional leadership and supporting and encouraging staff development at all levels.

The University offers a variety of roles including academic, research, professional, managerial and support roles. We also offer extensive benefits and excellent learning opportunities within a stimulating working environment.

The University's estate is undergoing the most significant transformation in its history. Cambridge has been able to create a science and technology campus to the west of the city centre, and is expanding further to the north west of Cambridge including investing in affordable homes for University key workers and community facilities. Even with their continued development, the University remains within walking or cycling distance across the campus. The University is a major partner on the Cambridge Biomedical Campus and continues to redevelop its historic city centre sites demonstrating a clear determination to ensure that we can offer the best facilities and opportunities for our staff and students.

Equality, Diversity and Inclusion

The University has built its excellence on the diversity of its staff and student community. We aim to be a leader in fostering equality and inclusion, and in promoting respect and a sense of belonging for all. We encourage applications from all sections of society. All appointments are made on the basis of merit. We have an Equal Opportunities Policy, along with a range of diversity groups, including the Women's Staff Network, Race Equality Network and LGBT+ Staff Network. More details are available here:

<http://www.equality.admin.cam.ac.uk/>

The University has a bronze Race Equality Charter award, with a framework for improving the representation, progression and success of minority ethnic staff and students within higher education. Furthermore, the University's silver Athena swan award recognises and celebrates good practice in recruiting, retaining and promoting gender equality.

Living in Cambridge

Cambridge is rich in cultural diversity. From beautiful University and College buildings, museums and art galleries, quaint gardens and punts on the River Cam, to a vibrant restaurant and café scene, our employees are surrounded by the wonderful features of this unique city.

You can find a wide-range of high street shops and 3 shopping centres, with independent alternatives at the historic market and nestled within the passageways in the city centre. You will find a cinema, bowling alley, a nightclub and various live performances at the Cambridge Leisure Park, with further entertainment options at the Corn Exchange, Arts Theatre and the ADC Theatre. Further information can be found on the Visit Cambridge website.

If you prefer the faster pace of life, London is a 45-minute train journey away. For those travelling from overseas, Stansted Airport is just 45 minutes away and Heathrow Airport under 2 hours away. The University is a short distance from a host of other attractions such as Ely Cathedral, Newmarket Races and various wildlife parks and stately homes. Cambridge is also within easy reach of the beautiful Broads and coastlines of Norfolk and Suffolk.
